This vineyard represents what High Plains growing is all about. The Paddock and Timmons families have partnered up to develop one of the state's premier vineyards. Andy Timmons has developed this small acreage to be close to town, taking advantage of some of the city's warmth during spring frosts. He has also planted some of the state's best Rhone and Bordeaux varietals. Look for this vineyard to be a major source for our wines in the future. We worked very hard to bring out the soul of this wine. This young wine should evolve brilliantly over the next 12-18 years.

Tones of prunes and black mission fig with plum edges. Very full bodied with soft notes of fig paste, grilled quail and dark berry liqueur. Inky and dark on the palate, lightly bitter with pure dark cocoa, black tea, stewed wild herbs and prune skins. Finishes with a tangy dollop of fresh yogurt.
